Clerk Who Bid for $5,800,000 o Bonds Assures Secretary Shaw He'll Make Good.

AND PRICE IS STILL RISING

New Magnate of Financial Dis trict Comes to Light in New York.

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, July 26.—It was learned to-day that J. S. Bache & Company, bankers, had purchased the $5,880,000 of Panama Canal bonds which were recently allotted by the Treasury Department to Samuel Byerly, an express company's clerk, of this city. Bache' & Company have, in turn, disposed of the bonds to Fisk & Robinson, who were the successful bidders for the greater portion of the isse. The price of the bonds already has advanced to 104.40, which means a profit of $27,024 for the clerk.

NEW YORK, July 26.—The World to-lay says:
Samuel Byerley, the new magnate of the financial district, who is a clerk employed by the American Express Company in its lower Broadway office, had a profitable day yesterday. The price of the new Panama Canal bonds just issued by the United States government advances to 104.40, the market indications being that they will go still higher.

Mr. Byerley, who was a successful bidder for $5,500,000 of the bonds at figures well under the ruling market price, put in a busy day. Though his fellow-clerks seriously doubt Mr. Byerley's ability to hand over $5,800,000 on August 1st to the Secretary of the Treasury, he was not disturbed. Questions as to how he managed to save $6,500,000 on the salary paid him by the express company phone and asked whether he was to receive his allotment of $5,800,000 of the bonds. The Secretary answered that if he deposited the amount of the premi-ums by August 1st the bonds would be allotted him. Byerley responded that he fully intended to comply with the government's requirements.

A dispatch from Washington stated that, while the Treasury Department was convinced that Byerley merely put in a speculative bid in the hope of selling his option to banking arms at a good profit, the Secretary of the Treasury would show him precisely the same consideration extended to the great banks and banking houses, which also put in successful bids.

Whether Byerley made any progress yesterday in finding a buyer for his $5.0000 of the bend issue could not be learned. He is not taking for publication about his financial venture. It is helieved in the Wall Street district that he will be able to dispose of his option at a good profit to himself.

Should he fail to do so, or take up the

at a good profit to himself.

Should he fall to do so, or take up the bonds, they will be allotted to the next highest bidders. In that event $5,000,000 would go to Fisk and Robinsen, who have already been allotted $15,000,000, or half the entire issue, and $500,000 would go to several small bidders.

At yesterday's figures for the bonds, Byerley's profits amounted to $27,024.

Precious Stones in Hiding.

Precious Stones in Hiding.

The turquoise, like the opal, is found in the desolate and waterless parts of the world. The principal deposits so far known are in the Persian Desert and on the barren plateaus of New Mexico and Arizona.

Usually the best specimens are taken from disintegrated rock, and the mining of turquoise is not only accompanied with much hardship, on account of the location, but can be performed only with great difficulty. The quantity, combined with other stones, as well as with gold, and by litself, is so extensive in the cities of Ensiern Europe that more of it is believed to be bought by gemmerchants in this way than at present secured from the principal mines.

This is not strange, however, for not only turquoise, but other preclous stones, are known to exist in remarkably large collections in Constantinople, as well as in cities in Turkestan, Persia and communities of Southwestern Europe.

They are hidden away in ginger jars, rugs, old boxes and other receptacies of the household, where the owner believes there is little prospect of search being made for them. Gem collectors who have searched for stones in this part of the world say that no one can tell how many and what valuable specially of the world say that no one can tell how many and what valuable specially forged to part with them through dire necessity.

Undoubtedly many a sem brought from the famous mines of India, Egypt and Persia in the past has been thus secreted. Prof. Fiinders Petrie says the Egyptian mines at Sinat, worked from the first to the twentieth dynasty, may have yielded turquoise and copper.—Chambers's Journal.

'Mrs. Hartje left the building accompanied by Mrs. Alexander W. Slocum, who has been Mrs. Hartje's constant companion throughout the hearing. The women were on the way to the office of John Freeman, Mrs. Hartje's counsel. They had gone but a few steps from the courthouse, when a man having the appearance of a mill-worker, thrust out his arm, and, grabbing Mrs. Hartje, dragged her across the pavement, saying: "Mary, come with me."

Bereaming with fright, Mrs. Hartje, managed to escape from the man, and found refuge in Mr. Freeman's office. In the meantime, the man started to run, but soon was lost to the view of those who took up the chase. Later Mrs. Slocum pointed out a man as the assaliant, and he was arrested, but he was not the man.

To-day,was the first since the hearing that Mrs. Hartje has appeared on the street without a detective being near. At her own request, the detectives were dismissed from protecting her.

Market Day in a Norman Town

Market Day in a Norman Town.

All the ladles of Valognes do their own marketing, and some of the well-known fish women and farmers' wives who come in from the country with poultry would be quite hurt if Madame la Comtesse didn't come herself to give her. orders and have a little talk. This morning I have been to market, with Countess Florian. The women looked so rice and clean in their short, black, peavily-plaited skirts, high white caps, and hamdkerchier's pinned over their bodices. The little stalls went all down the narrow main street and spread out on the big square before the church. The church is large, with a square tower and ine dome-nothing very interesting as to architectura. Some of the stalls were very tempting, and the smiling, red-cheeked old women, sitting up behind their wares, were so civil and anxious to sell us something. The falmarket was most inviting-quantities of flat white turbots, shining silver mackerel, and fresh crovettes plied high on a marble slab with water, running over them. Four or five short-skirted, barelegged fisher girls were standing at the door with baskets of fish on their heads. Florian joined us there and seemed on the best of terms with these young women. He made all kinds of jokes with them, to which they responded with gisgles and a funny little half courtesy, half nod. Both Florians spoke so nicely to all the market people as we passed from stall to stall. The poultry looked very good—such fat ducks and chickens. It was funny to see the bourgeoless of valognes all armed with a large basket doing their marketing; they looked at the chickens, poked them, lifted them so as to be sure of their weight, and evidently knew to a centime what they had to pay. I fanny the Norman menagerie is a pretty sharp customer and knows exactly what she must pay for everything: The vegstable stalls were very well arranged—the most enormous cabbages I ever saw, I think the old ladies who presided there were doing a flourishing business.—Soribaer's Magazine.
